

Measure 97: Our opportunity to invest in a Better Oregon.

Large and out-of-state corporations make hundreds of millions of dollars from the business they do here in Oregon but pay taxes that are so low our students and communities aren't getting the schools and services they deserve. Measure 97 can change this.

By increasing the corporate minimum tax when Oregon sales exceed $25 million, large corporations like Comcast and Monsanto will finally pay their fair share for Oregon's underfunded schools and critical services. Oregon taxpayers do their part, and large and out-of-state corporations should do theirs too.

Oregon ranks dead last in corporate taxes.

Oregon has by far the lowest corporate taxes in the country. During the last four decades, the tax burden in Oregon has shifted from corporations to working families. In 1973, corporations paid 18.5% of all Oregon income taxes. Today they pay just 6.7%, a decline of nearly two-thirds.

Business taxes as a share of pre-tax operating surplus

Anderson Economic Group, 2015

What Measure 97 means for us.

By making large and out-of-state corporations pay their fair share, we will finally be able to address Oregon's underfunded schools, health care systems, and senior services.

We can make sure every Oregonian has access to health insurance.

We can reduce class sizes, increase one-on-one attention, and restore lost programs like music, art, PE, and Career/Tech Education.

We can help seniors retire with dignity and receive quality in-home care.

Who will pay?

Only the largest corporations doing business in Oregon will pay the new minimum tax.

82% of the revenue raised by Measure 97 will come from companies headquartered outside the state. Only C corporations with more than $25 million in annual Oregon sales will pay a higher minimum tax. This is less than 1% of all businesses operating in the state.

Join us!

Our strong, grassroots coalition is standing up for our students, our seniors, and all working-class Oregonians. Visit oregoned.org/betteroregon for information on how you can get involved!

Upcoming Canvasses

Upcoming Phonebanks

